

City of Costa Mesa Prevails in Defending Sober Living Home Regulations

The City of Costa Mesa prevailed in its defense of laws preventing the concentration of group sober living homes within the City.

Today a jury, convened in the Federal District Court for the Central District of California, delivered a unanimous verdict in support of the City's laws and efforts.

The case was filed in 2019. The plaintiffs are the operators of five locations that are in violation of the City's municipal code. The suit challenged the City's legislation that was developed to address concerns throughout the community about the proliferation of the facilities, negative impacts on surrounding residential neighborhoods, and harm to those recovering from drug and alcohol dependence.

"We are grateful that the jury affirmed Costa Mesa's support of our neighborhoods and well-run, appropriately-sited group sober living homes," noted Costa Mesa Mayor John Stephens. "We've developed, enforced and defended our reasonable laws that prevent sober living home operators from preying upon and exploiting those suffering from addiction while restoring and maintaining the character of our neighborhoods. Our pioneering ordinances balance these important public safety interests. This verdict is yet another in a long string of victories in court that vindicate our approach."

For nearly a decade, the City has developed and refined a series of laws that have been widely successful in eliminating poorly-run homes and supporting the neighborhoods in which compliant facilities operate. Left unchecked, unregulated sober living homes often provided substandard or dangerous care and disregarded regulations designed to help them be good neighbors.

The decision is expected to be appealed, and the City intends to continue its commitment to its residents and business operators, and most importantly, those seeking addiction treatment.

“We will likely face an appeal, however, the City will fight any attempts to weaken its ordinances related to group sober living homes,” added City Attorney Kimberly Hall Barlow.

The City has prevailed in numerous similar legal actions, reaffirming its right to enact ordinances in the best interests of the community. Other related cases are pending, and the City is confident it will continue to prevail.

Costa Mesa City Clerk Brenda Green receives Clerk of Distinction award for Technology and Innovation

The City Clerk Association of California has presented Costa Mesa City Clerk Brenda Green with the 2022 Municipal Clerk of Distinction Technology and Innovation award.

“Brenda Green is an unsung hero at City Hall,” Mayor John Stephens said. “Recently, she seamlessly executed our redistricting project. Her department handles all public records requests and thousands of filings and inquiries. She prepares our City Council agendas and minutes and provides support to the city's commissions and committees. Brenda is a trusted teammate during our council meetings. I couldn't get through a meeting without her. Brenda is very deserving of this recognition. Congratulations!"

Green was nominated for the award by Council Member Arlis Reynolds and Assistant City Manager Susan Price. In letters to the City Clerk Association, they both cited her innovation, dedication to the City and community and her professionalism.

Green, who has been the Costa Mesa City Clerk since 2012, was surprised when she learned she received this honor.

"I would like to thank the City Clerk Association for honoring me with this award and also Susan Price, Dina Wild, Stacy Bennett and Council Member Reynolds for the nomination," she said. "I am so thankful and happy, but I did not achieve this award on my own. I share this with our entire City Clerk team, David Nguyen, Stacy Bennett, Gladys Gonzalez, Tammy Arrington, Sarah Bravo-Wetzel, Karen Walker, and Leslie Pacheco. Also, I would like to recognize Ron Dam and Jeff Trujillo, with CMTV for their collaboration."

She also noted the obstacles of her job the last two years.

"One morning we woke up during a world-wide pandemic and had to craft workable solutions to continue to hold public meetings," she said. "It definitely was an adventure in learning, but now we have hybrid meetings and have integrated Zoom, Granicus, Vote Lynx, and You Tube, so the public has access and can participate both remotely and in person with their government. I appreciate this honor for all of our hard work. Thank you."

Green was instrumental in the implementation of the virtual technology needed to host City Council, Committee and Commission meetings, ensuring public access to City government during a global pandemic where many other amenities had restrictive access.

Most recently, Green has managed the City's redistricting efforts that required public input and the City Council action to change the geographic boundaries of the City's six council district based off the most recent 2020 Census data.

She also oversees all City elections and manages the City's unique elections webpage that centralized election-related information in one place. The webpage is easy to navigate and includes key information such as candidate disclosure statements, ballot measures, a candidate resource guide, an election calendar, election-related notices and voter information, and an interactive district map.

Green manages the City's Concierge Desk staff that handles residents calls and helps direct City Hall customer traffic to the right place.

Prior to her work in Costa Mesa, Green was the City Clerk in Stanton from 1999 to 2011. Before working for City government she worked as an executive assistant for two assembly members and one state senator in the California State Legislature from 1988 to 1998.

A Costa Mesa resident, Green has a bachelor's degree in business from Southern Columbia University in Orange Beach, Alabama.

CMPD will be conducting a DUI and driver's license checkpoint

The Costa Mesa Police Department will be conducting a driving under the influence (DUI) and driver's license checkpoint on the day after St. Patrick's Day, Friday, March 18, 2022, from 8:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. within the city limits.

Checkpoint locations are determined based on data showing incidents of impaired driving-related crashes. The primary purpose of DUI checkpoints is not to make arrests, but to promote public safety by distributing educational information and by taking suspected impaired drivers off the road.

“If you plan to celebrate St. Patrick’s Day on Friday, have a game plan to get home safe and do not drink and drive,” Sgt. Dan Miles said. “These checkpoints, funded by the California Office of Traffic Safety, are essential to keeping the community safe. On Friday, we will be looking for impaired drivers because driving under the influence is dangerous and puts others on the road at risk.”

“Our preference is to have zero DUI drivers on our roadways and that those who decide to drink do so responsibly by always having a designated driver,” said Chief Ron Lawrence. “DUI checkpoints are a way to educate our community and our hope is people learn to plan ahead with alternative transportation when out drinking.”

CMPD reminds the public that impaired driving is not just from alcohol. Some prescription medications or over-the-counter drugs may interfere with driving. Always follow directions for use and read warning labels about driving or “operating heavy machinery,” which includes driving a car. While medicinal and recreational marijuana are legal, driving under the influence of marijuana is illegal. Drivers charged with a first-time DUI face an average of $13,500 in fines and penalties, as well as a suspended license.

CMPD offers these reminders to ensure you have a safe night of fun that does not involve a DUI:

- Always use a designated sober driver to get home, which could be a friend who is not drinking, ride-share, a cab or public transportation.
- If you see someone who is impaired try to drive, take the keys and help them make other arrangements to find a sober way home.
- Call 911 to report drunk drivers.
- If you are hosting a party, offer nonalcoholic drinks. Monitor those who are drinking and how they are getting home.

- If you plan on drinking or taking medications that may impact your ability to drive safely, plan on staying at home.

Costa Mesa hires Brett Atencio Thomas to be first Active Transportation Coordinator

Costa Mesa Public Services Director Raja Sethuraman announced that on Monday Jan. 10, Brett Atencio Thomas became the City's first Active Transportation Coordinator, where he will oversee projects and initiatives to improve biking and walkability.

"This new position fulfills several of our council goals and helps us serve a growing need in the community to make Costa Mesa more biking and walking friendly," Mayor John Stephens said. "We are fortunate that Director Sethuraman found someone with Brett Atencio's background and experience to lead these efforts."

Fifth District Council Member Arlis Reynolds and an advocate for Active Transportation is also happy to welcome Thomas to the team.

"Adding Brett Atencio to our team elevates Active Transportation from a council goal to a reality," said

Reynolds, who is also a board member with America Walks, a national organization focused on improving walkability in communities. "I'm thrilled that we have added someone with his expertise and education and I look forward to working with him to make Costa Mesa a safer place for pedestrians, cyclists and motorists alike."

Sethuraman agreed he will be a valuable member of the Public Services team.

"Brett Atencio brings unique capabilities and ideas to the Public Services Department to provide further focus to and promote Active Transportation for the City," Sethuraman said.

The City of Costa Mesa's Housing Ad Hoc Committee will be hosting a Community Forum virtually via Zoom on Tuesday Jan. 11 at 6 p.m. to discuss the Housing Element and Measure Y. The Ad Hoc Committee will take public input, understand the purpose and challenges of Measure Y, and discuss a viable path forward for the city's Housing Element and housing goals.

In October, the City Council created an Housing Ad Hoc Committee, whose members are Mayor Pro Tem Andrea Marr, Council Members Arlis Reynolds and Jeff Harlan, to participate and advise on City activities and actions pertaining to the Housing Element implementation and ongoing compliance with State housing element law.

Since then, the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) determined that Costa Mesa's Measure Y is a constraint to the development of housing and conflicts with State law.

Measure Y requires a vote of the people for certain types of development in the City, including housing projects.

Last redistricting workshop scheduled as virtual meeting on Jan. 8 at 10 a.m.

The City of Costa Mesa will hold its final redistricting community workshop on Saturday Jan. 8 at 10 a.m. virtually via Zoom to seek the public's help to review and revise the City districts as required by state law and discuss the currently proposed draft maps.

The primary goal when developing election districts is to draw lines that respect neighborhoods, history and geographical elements. The City of Costa Mesa is seeking the public's help to plan and draw new City district maps that will define the six City of Costa Mesa district borders.

The city's demographer will review all submissions and make revisions as necessary, based on Council direction and community input.

Every 10 years, local governments use new data from the Census to redraw their district lines to reflect how local populations have changed. State law requires cities to engage communities in the redistricting process by holding public hearings and doing public outreach.
